

Overview

U.S. Bank Multi Service Aviation has been the leading card provider for aviation fuel and related services for more than 25 years. Backed by U.S. Bank, the fifth largest commercial bank in the United States, the U.S. Bank Aviation Card is specifically tailored to fit the unique needs of the aviation workforce.

How It Works

Providing a complete set of payment management and tracking tools is what Multi Service Aviation is all about. With the aviation card, operators can:

- Pay for all aviation-related services, including fuel, flight planning, aircraft handling, trip support and weather tracking, catering and more, with just one card
- Leverage discount fuel contracts and rates
- Create customized reports to manage and budget your monthly aviation-related expenses
- Track invoices online, anytime from anywhere in the world

Worldwide Acceptance

The Multi Service Aviation network reaches literally around the world. Accepted by more than 7,500 merchants in more than 190 countries, Multi Service Aviation takes the complexity out of worldwide travel.

Flight Support Services

Multi Service Aviation offers flight support services in conjunction with Baseops International, a leading global flight support services company. The combination of these two powerful organizations brings even more value to our clients. Aviation departments can more efficiently and effectively manage their overall programs by scheduling and paying for all of their aviation-related expenses by using just one card and will receive just one invoice.

In addition, the aviation card can be used for payment for a variety of aviation-related services, including:

- Creating computer-generated flight plans
- Securing assigned runways and landing slots
- Establishing over flight and landing permits
- Making hotel, ground handling, transportation and catering arrangements
- Securing visa and diplomatic clearance

Extensive Online Support

Extensive online support services supply the cardholder with tools needed to efficiently manage an aviation business. Flight departments have access to online account information from anywhere in the world via the Internet. Pilots can also review or create customized reports and search for worldwide locations that accept the aviation card.

- Customizable Reporting — Flight departments can customize reports to track expenses, as well as separate costs by vendor, date of transaction, etc. Reports can be created to show total fuel purchase and consumption and ground services utilized over a specified time, thus allowing companies to calculate fuel and travel budgets for future trips.
- Online Services — At multiserviceaviation.com, aviation departments can search a comprehensive directory (searchable by country, ICAO and IATA), which lists all merchant locations that accept the aviation card. U.S.-based clients, can conveniently review and pay invoices online from anywhere in the world via the Internet.

International Fuel Pricing

Pilots can cut fuel costs by leveraging Multi Service Aviation's vendor relationships. The company works with more than 80 fuel suppliers worldwide to negotiate lower fuel pricing for cardholders traveling internationally.

Unsurpassed Customer Service

With a superior level of customer service available, cardholders have confidence when using the aviation card. Customer service will arrange other services, including scheduling, maintenance, aircraft handling, ground transportation, catering and hotel booking. For international flights, customer service can set up fuel requests, negotiate lower fuel prices and arrange for contract fuel.

A testament to the large network of Multi Service Aviation satisfied cardholders is the number of PRASE (Preferences Regarding Aviation Services & Equipment) awards Professional Pilot readers have given to Multi Service Aviation. Multi Service Aviation has been the only recipient of the Favorite Fuel Card award since its introduction in 1993 through 2011.
